Administrative History note

The Nation Institute for Consumer Education (NICE) is a resource and professional development center for consumer educators. NICE serves K-12 educators, college faculty and students, private industry representatives, government agency personnel, education association leaders, consumer, arbor and community groups, and media representatives. It was a clearinghouse for consumer education materials and linked materials with educators. Textbooks, curriculum guides, software programs, research reports and videos. Previously known as the Michigan Consumer Education Center and located in the College of Education at Eastern Michigan University since 1973, it is a professional development center. Since 1976, NICE has served as an Economic Education Center at Eastern Michigan University, in the network of university centers of the National Council on Economic Education and since 1991, has served as the Adjunct ERIC Clearinghouse for Consumer Education, a national information system for education practitioners operated by the United States Department of Education.

Eastern Michigan University provides basic operational funds for NICE. Additional support comes from corporations, associations, foundations, governments and individuals through grants, contracts, fees and contributions.
